Harkness fellow, Institute Policy and Management, Erasmus University Rotterdam, The Netherlands

Curriculum Vitae

Antoinette is an associate professor at the Institute for Health Policy and Management of the Erasmus University in Rotterdam, the Netherlands. With a background in both health science and science and technology studies, Antoinette has completed several ethnographic studies about the impact of formal instruments - such as electronic patient records, registries or incident report systems - on the work and the governance of care givers. In 2010 Antoinette was based as an Harkness fellow in Health Policy and Practice at Kaiser Permanente California to do research about patient safety in primary care. She observed and filmed family physicians to explore and strengthen the implicit initiatives and routines that underpin patient safety.
